

Winthrop Women's Coalition

The Power of a Giving Circle

The WWC is a collective giving effort where each participant contributes to a membership level of their choosing. Memberships in the Coalition provide annual gifts that directly support short-term strategic projects that directly impact Winthrop students.

Winthrop University has a history of producing strong, accomplished, successful women who are engaged and committed to education, community, and philanthropy.

The Winthrop Women's Coalition was created to bring together individuals who want to get more engaged and involved with the university. A group of strong, accomplished philanthropic women can do great things together.

About Us

The Winthrop Women's Coalition (WWC) is a giving circle that promotes philanthropy and transforms the lives of Winthrop students while providing its members with opportunities for personal and professional growth. A collaboration between Coalition members and university leadership fosters mentoring and networking through education, professional development, and philanthropic efforts.

Memberships in the Coalition provide annual gifts that directly support short-term strategic projects that directly impact Winthrop students.

Be Part of Something Bigger

The WWC connects generations of women who want to directly support university programs, services, and scholarship initiatives and create opportunities for future generations. Complete the membership application to the right to become a part of something bigger.
