By William Shakespeare

From historic feud to ill-fated union, Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet finds new significance in Winthrop's intimate Studio Theatre. Verona is sick. Its structures broken and its citizens in a state of desperation. When a system favours the few, the many are left with nothing but unhealthy choices. Admst the violence, bloodshed, fear and unrest, two teenagers find unexpected relief in each other. But will love be enough to save them from Society's sickness?

Summer course option...

M E D I E V A L

This course investigates the visual culture of medieval monsters and the monstrous. Dragons, gargoyles, sea monsters, cephalophores, sciapods, aliens, terrors, and other wonders will be considered in their social, political, and religious contexts. We will examine how monsters participated in constructs of cultural identity, gender, race, class, and ethnicity in medieval Europe and explore what images of monsters can reveal about fears of the “other,” shifting social hierarchies, warfare, disease, death, and other anxieties. In lieu of exams, students will imagine and create their own medieval monsters related to course topics. No prerequisites.

M O N S T E R S

Prof. Kyle Sweeney

ARTH 311X / MDST 350 | Online | July 8–Aug. 7

Attention Art and Design Students! Need a summer course?

Dragons, unicorns, gargoyles, and other curious creatures are some of the most enduring legacies of the European Middle Ages. Learn more about the visual culture of medieval monsters online (asynchronous) this summer in ARTH 311X (July 8–Aug. 7).

This art history course will appeal to folks interested not only in the Middle Ages, but fantasy, medievalisms/popular culture, monster studies, gaming, myths, legends, history, and Game of Thrones. In lieu of exams, students will keep a Monster Research Journal and design/create their own medieval monsters related to course topics. There are no prerequisites.

This will be a small online class so if it is of interest to you, then be sure to register on March 20. Advising is not required for summer classes. If you have any questions or encounter any difficulties registering for the course, please contact Dr. Sweeney (sweeneyk@winthrop.edu).
